'LOOK WHAT THIS POTHOLE DID TO MY FACE'

Youngster chips teeth and is grazed after bike hits crater

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A YOUNGSTER underwent emergency dental treatment after hitting a "dangerous" pothole yards from her home and being thrown from her bike.

Three-year-old Emmie Howard is waiting to find out if she has broken her nose after falling head first onto the concrete path on her way to nursery.

"She was hysterical," said her father Jamie Howard, 35.

"It is disgusting this dangerous pothole has not been filled, especially as the council are aware of it."

Mr Howard said Emmie had set off from the family's Whitewaits home with her grandmother to Jack and Jill's nursery on Thursday, July 9.

However, as she rode past their neighbour's house Emmie was thrown head-first over the handlebars after hitting the 5in deep hole at the side of the footpath.

Purple

Mr Howard said: "She was in agony and has chipped two teeth. Before her teeth were fine but impact has pushed them right back and they are now crooked."

"Her gums turned purple and we were fearing they could turn black, which could cause her teeth to fall out. She will now probably need

"Emmie will now have an X-ray to see if she has broken her nose," added Mr Howard, whose son Ashton, 6, attends the nearby Freshwaters Primary Academy.

Complaints

Mr Howard said Essex County Council already had a record of complaints about the pothole when he called them later that day.

He said the lack of action was "unacceptable".

"The pothole is five or six inches deep [and] is a dangerous trip hazard. God help an older person with brittle bones who falls over it."

"My neighbour said that children have fallen over it before which is

Gatecrasher threatened partygoers for phones

A 19-YEAR-OLD man who threatened partygoers in Harlow with a broken bottle before stealing their mobile phones has been sentenced to three years in a young offender institution.

Arron Roberts, of Elwood, Harlow, was one of two men who gatecrashed a house party in Altham Grove on February 27, 2015, and demanded the guests hand over their smartphones.

Robbery

Roberts was arrested on March 1, 2015 and later charged with two counts of robbery and three counts of attempted robbery.

He pleaded guilty to all charges at Chelmsford Crown Court on Wednesday, July 8, and was sentenced to three years in a young offender institution.

A 16-year-old boy from Harlow arrested in connection with the incident is currently on bail pending further investigations until August 18.

SPEAKING OUT: The anti-austerity campaigners

Campaigners hit out over budget

Protest over cuts that 'hit poorest hardest'

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ANTI-AUSTERITY campaigners gathered outside Harlow Civic Centre to protest against Government budget cuts.

Unveiled by Chancellor George Osborne, the Tory Government celebrated the budget's proposed new living wage for the over 25s, corporation tax cuts and further NHS funding.

The first fully Conservative budget since 1996 also set out a reduction in rents for social housing alongside cuts to housing benefit, and a new apprenticeship levy for larger businesses.

But, the restriction of tax credits and universal credit to two children starting in 2017, was met with criticism from campaigners who say they will "really hit the town".

The protesters are angry at measures to prevent 18-21 year olds from automatically obtaining benefits and hit the town. It is crucial to make a symbolic stand locally.

"There is a feeling of anti-austerity growing over the last five years as people have felt they have been paying for an economic crisis they didn't cause.

"It seems that under this Tory government that is going to continue.

"It seems this is a budget that will look after the top and will hurt the people at the bottom."

Harlow MP Robert Halfon, who is also deputy chairman of the Conservative Party, welcomed the budget which he said was a huge boost for workers.

The minister without a portfolio said: "(The budget) is good for Harlow workers, apprentices, lower earners and the most vulnerable.

"The new living wage and tax cuts for the lower paid will be a huge boost to Harlow workers.

"The budget continues to freeze fuel duty, cuts taxes for those on a minimum wage and doubles the amount of free childcare for three and four year olds."

The Tory MP added: "I also welcome the news that the cost of renting will be reduced significantly over the next five years.

"As well as cutting people's taxes and increasing their pay, reducing rents will help many Harlow residents with the cost of living."

unsurprising as Freshwaters school is only round the corner.

"But the council missed this pothole out when they renovated the paths a few months ago and they spray painted it purple, which for them signifies a low priority risk.

"I can't understand why they have not done anything. I feel like buying a bag of sand and filling the hole in myself."

Emmie's wounds are slowly healing and the family say that she has showed no reluctance when it comes to getting back on her bike. She went back to the Monswick Road nursery Jack and Jill's the following day.

Solicitor

But, Mr Howard is unhappy that the hole remains unfilled and has taken legal advice by contacting a solicitor.

"It would only take ten minutes to fill the hole and it's not as if they would have to dig up the pavement. I can't see it costing more than £50, it is ridiculous.

"I have now contacted a solicitor.

"It (the pothole) has been reported so many times but they have still done nothing about it and are saying it's not important. It's madness. Something needs to be done as it could happen again."

An Essex County Council spokesman said the matter was being looked into.

LEGAL ADVICE: Terry Lubbock with a photo of his son Stuart

Picture by Steve Weemes

Bereaved dad's legal threat to Barrymore

THE father of a man found dead in Michael Barrymore's swimming pool is set to sue the entertainer.

It follows the news that Barrymore, 63, is suing Essex Police, claiming they damaged his career after arresting him in 2007 on suspicion of Stuart Lubbock's murder and sexual assault.

Now, Mr Lubbock's father Terry has told the national press that he consulted top lawyers to seek compensation from Barrymore for alleged negligence in failing to protect his son while at his home.

Terry, 70, said: "Barrymore has got some front by trying to sue the police so I've decided to give him a taste of his own medicine by taking legal action against him."

Responsible

"My son died while he was on Barrymore's property and I hold him responsible for not protecting him."

Father-of-two Stuart Lubbock was discovered in the pool at Barrymore's home in Beaumont Park Road, Roydon, in March 2001. The 31-year-old had met the entertainer at a nightclub in Harlow earlier that evening and went back to his house for an all-night party.

He had been violently sexually assaulted and police launched a murder investigation.

An inquest into the death of Mr Lubbock was told he had ecstasy, cocaine and alcohol in his system.

Yet another winter in freezing homes?

Council won't set date to start improvements

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertssexnews.co.uk

COUNCIL tenants fear another winter living in freezing conditions as delays to replace windows in their properties continue.

Up to a dozen residents in Chippingfield, Old Harlow, are waiting for their single-glazed windows and doors to be replaced by Harlow Council under its modern homes programme.

But after months of delays, they are worried the work will not be carried out before the winter.

"It's 2015 - it shouldn't be like this. I know we're only renting but I think we deserve a better service," said 71-year-old Terry Heathfield, who lives in the street with his 69-year-old wife.

He added: "We do feel the cold a bit more than when we were younger and we don't expect special treatment because of that but in the winter it is really cold."

Due to start

The residents say they have been told on three occasions that the work was due to start but nothing has happened. They also say surveys have been done on the properties on two occasions.

Another resident Brian Cullen, 56, said: "The houses are cold and there is always a draft. The doors are rotting and many residents have problems with damp."

He added: "When you phone the council, you don't get any sense out of them. We were told it would start last year, then in January and it still hasn't started."

"I'm worried it won't be done before the winter. We're walking around in jumpers and paying top end for our heating bills - we're all very upset."

Mr Cullen says his seven-year-old daughter, who regularly stays at the property, often wears a dressing gown over her clothes to keep warm.

Mr Heathfield said it was so cold last winter that he attached polythene sheets to the windows to help keep the heat in.

The residents have spoken with both Harlow MP Robert Halfon and ward councillor Joel Charles, who are speaking with the council over the issue.

Councillor Rod Truan, portfolio-holder for housing, said: "Harlow Council publishes an outline modern homes improvement programme each year in April. This outlines the works programme for the following year.

"This is reviewed against the resources the council has available, and priorities identified from the housing stock condition survey completed in 2012."

"The size and scale of this programme means sometimes timescales can change, but tenants affected are kept up to date."

"Window replacements in Chippingfield were due to be carried out towards the end of the last financial year (mid-February to mid-March 2015) as part of the council's commitment to bring forward replacement of single and double glazed window and doors."

"Unfortunately this works programme has been reprioritised for completion in 2015/16. Residents were informed in February 2015 that the work had been deferred. We appreciate that the delays are frustrating for these tenants, and we will be communicating with residents shortly to confirm when work will start."

Frustrated by selfish drivers

SIR Having decided to visit Harlow town centre at around 3pm this afternoon, I was most disappointed to witness the "every man for himself" attitude of some drivers who obviously use our roads regularly.

I sat in the heat of the afternoon in an extremely slow-moving queue southbound along Central Avenue/Velizy Avenue with the entrance to Harlow College on my left. I could not understand the reason why this queue was not moving until I realised that many selfish drivers were taking the slipway into the college car park and coming straight out at the other end where they were let in by polite drivers.

Is there any way the college slip road and entrance could be prevented from this misuse by anti-social drivers before an accident happens to one of the students?

This is just one more reason

So much for Tory localism

SIR The mysterious and anonymous local government legal expert quoted in your article about street lighting (Star, July 2) seems to be very ill informed when he stated Harlow politicians were holding Essex County Council to ransom. Excuse me? I think it is the other way round.

The mantra of the Conservative government and the coalition before it has been localism and an Act of Parliament followed. The aim is to devolve more decision-making powers from central government back into the hands of individuals, communities and councils with a particular focus on community rights, neighbourhood planning and housing.

In short it's about putting the power to decide what's right for local communities back in the hands of those who live and work in those communities.

The refusal to switch Harlow's lights back on by Essex County Council, even though it would be funded from a minuscule rise in council tax, was one of the most and most crass responses I've ever seen, with transport chief Rodney Bass describing it as a "bizarre financial proposal". This smacks of the Tory-controlled county council politically slapping the face of Labour-controlled Harlow.

The offer to fund lighting by the district council has the support of all three parties. Every piece of major research on the subject clearly demonstrates that good lighting not only reduces crime but also the fear of crime and has a positive impact on road safety.

They have certainly forgotten Harlow residents' views on the matter. So much for Tory localism! Residents were not consulted.

Cllr Bass stated it was in the interests of the council taxpayers of Harlow as well as those of Essex as a whole. Really?

Based on the council's own figures, the cost of switching street lights off is £6.5m. Break even won't happen until 2020 and savings of only £3.5m (far short of the initial cost) will not be made until 2024.

With regard to environmental and cost issues, why is the county council not considering switching to energy-efficient LED street lights as an alternative to switching them off.

In the meantime our Conservative MP remains silent on the subject of residents' wishes on this matter and on Tory localism.

Tell us where our money is

SIR Further to your report about streetlighting in Harlow (Star, July 2), I think it is high time a law was passed giving residents a legal right to say how our council tax is spent.

I would like to know where our money is being stashed, in the UK or in an offshore account? Where is all the interest made on that money and what has happened to the money saved from denying us lights at night?

The civil servants at Harlow Council are just that, servants who are supposed to be working for us and the best interest of our town.

Too much emphasis is placed on the unfortunate unemployed who are blamed for being a drain on the taxpayers' money. People who are struggling to live on a minimum wage or living on meagre benefits are being forced into more debt by court action because they cannot pay service charges or council tax.

Garages are for parking

SIR I am fed up with garage owners who do not use them for their cars and are using up already limited parking.

And why do some households get two garages when there are other homeowners in the area on the waiting list?

In my street alone there are four houses with seven garages between them.

I don't begrudge anyone a garage but there must be a fairer way to distribute them.

Blot on the landscape

SIR As a long-time resident of Jermonds, I found it rather galling watching our estate roads falling into so much disrepair.

Potholes the sizes of dustbins lids were a regular challenge to motorists trying to keep their

■ This spectacular photo was taken earlier this month by Andy Mortlock, of Parsonage Leys, Harlow, who writes: "I can't believe some people slept through this amazing storm. Look what they missed."

it being moved, so whose it was is still a mystery but it only takes one person to destroy months of planning and hard graft.

A lot of work was put into making our estates as perfect as possible, but for what? I hope the car owner gets charged the full cost of rectifying the aberration they caused because once again they have created an eyesore.

Equal funds for EU vote

SIR As the Greek financial crisis worsens by the day, it seems that people of all political parties generally agree that joining those countries using the Euro would have been a disaster for our economy, as the Greeks are now finding out to their cost.

The impending referendum on EU membership grows in importance as the crisis deepens. The subject of using public funds to pay for the yes and no campaigns will no doubt be much debated. Just how much any campaign affects the outcome of an election or referendum is open to question but I believe that most people have not yet been given enough facts to come to any conclusion.

It is interesting to note the cost of the recent general election campaign of Harlow's seven candidates. The five smaller parties representatives spent less than £3,000 between them. Labour candidate Suzy Stride's campaign expenses totalled just over £27,000 whilst the conservatives Robert Halfon cost just over £42,000.

On the face of it, it would seem that the more money spent on a campaign, the more votes you get. On the other hand, UKIP's spend of £1,000 helped attract over 7,000 votes compared with the Tories' £42,000 attracting 21,000 votes.

The Scottish referendum proved that holding a referendum on such an important issue leads to more people taking an interest in politics. Let's hope that both sides of the debate are equally funded and that those taking part in the vote are better informed of all of the issues before they make a decision on which way to vote.

DEBATE:
Construction students and tutors with Richard Howitt MEP at Harlow Enterprise Centre

MEP calls for teenagers to get the vote

EURO MP Richard Howitt is calling for 16-17-year-olds to be allowed to take part in the EU referendum.

Mr Howitt, a former leader of Harlow Council, said if they were denied the chance to vote they would be deprived of the opportunity to shape their own future.

"At 16 you are old enough to serve in the Armed Forces and at 17 you are trusted to drive a car," he said. "It's only right you are trusted to vote."

Meeting

Mr Howitt was speaking after meeting with a group of teenagers who are learning the skills required for a career in construction.

The issue is expected to be debated in the House of Lords.

"Given teenagers have a tremendous vested interest in whether or not we stay in the EU or leave, it is only proper that they have the chance to vote," he said. "This is an issue that will impact on the rest of the working lives."

"Sadly, I'm not surprised to find myself as the only Essex Euro MP backing votes for 16-17 year-olds."

Landlords face further checks

Council want to improve living standards

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

LANDLORDS operating houses in multiple occupation (HMO) without a licence have until the end of the month to apply or face a fine of up to £20,000 as part of a crackdown on living standards by Harlow Council.

Since April 2015 all homes where more than one household live have to be licenced by the authority.

The changes were introduced to help improve the standard of all HMOs, improve living conditions and respond to concerns raised by residents living near them.

Letters have been sent out to around 200 landlords and the council is currently processing applications for the additional scheme.

So far just 15 licences have been issued following inspections carried out by the council.

On August 1, the council will begin immediate enforcement action against any unlicensed HMOs.

The enforcement action may include prosecution against the owner or manager of the property or the council taking over the management of poorly managed HMOs.

The maximum fine for failing to have a licence is £20,000 and an automatic ban from operating any HMO in the UK. Tenants can also request the court to issue a Rent Repayment Order, which could require the Landlord to pay 12 months' of rent back.

By law a property that is three (or more) storeys high, containing five or more persons who form two or more households requires a mandatory HMO licence.

Additionally for Harlow, properties where a group of three or more people who are not all members of the same family living in the same building also require a licence.

Licensed HMOs are regularly inspected by council officers and must meet the appropriate standards for fire precautions and facilities for the number of occupants.

Councillor Mark Wilkinson, portfolio holder for environment, said: "This is about improving the quality of private rented accommodation and is something which should be welcomed by landlords, those living in HMOs and those living around them."

"We know the majority of HMOs are operated by landlords who provide safe quality accommodation but unfortunately there are some landlords who don't meet standards and this is ultimately who we are targeting."

"If you are a landlord operating a HMO and you need a licence for the additional scheme please apply now so we can work with you to ensure the licence is in place before enforcement action begins," he added.

Cycling challenge in memory of Annabelle

FUNDRAISING parents Wayne and Charlotte Burfitt are appealing for sponsorship for a charity cycle ride in memory of their daughter Annabelle.

The Burfitt's are hoping that 20 riders will join their 270-mile four-day ride from Paris to Harlow in May to help sufferers of spinal muscular atrophy

Annabelle died of the rare condition when she was just seven months old which prompted Wayne and Charlotte to set up the charity.

The Annabelle Rose Foundation funds treatment and awareness of SMA as well as supporting families.

Mr Burfitt said: "Every year we try and do different events to generate new funding and raise awareness.

"We are looking for companies to sponsor our event. This will be a big event for us, therefore you will receive a lot of recognition." ■ Email contact@annabellerosefoundation.co.uk for more information.

Have your say about hospital says watchdog

Opinions will help guide PAH inspection

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

AN NHS watchdog is asking Harlow residents to voice their views on the services provided by the trust which runs Princess Alexandra Hospital.

The Care Quality Commission wants members of the public to report their views and experiences which will then help inspectors decide what to look at when they inspect trust later this month.

The PAH NHS Trust will be given an overall rating under a new method of inspection introduced by the CQC. The formal inspection will start on July 21.

As part of the inspection process, the inspectors will be holding a "listening event" at the Park Inn in Southern Way, on Tuesday, starting at 6.30pm.

A CQC spokesman said: "People are being encouraged to attend to find out more about the inspection process, to tell the team about their experiences of care and to say where they would like to see improvements made in the future."

CQC chief inspector Professor Sir Mike Richards said: "The new inspections are designed to provide people with a clear picture of the quality of the services in their local hospital, exposing poor or mediocre care as well as highlighting the many hospitals providing good and excellent care."

"We know there is too much variation in quality. These new in-depth inspections will allow us to get a much more detailed picture of care in hospitals than ever before."

"Of course we will be talking to doctors and nurses, hospital managers and patients in the hospital, but it is vital that we also hear the views of the people who have had care at any of the hospitals run by the trust, or anyone else who wants to share information with us. This will help us plan our inspection, and so help us focus on the things that really matter to people who depend on this service."

"This is your opportunity to tell me and my team what you think, and make a difference to NHS services in the local area."

Sir Mike's inspection team is expected to look in detail at key service areas including A&E, medical care, surgery, intensive and critical care, maternity, paediatrics/children's care, end of life care and outpatients.

A full report of the inspectors' findings will be published by the CQC later in the year when the trust will be one of the first to be given a rating of outstanding, good, requiring improvement or inadequate.

■ People who want to take part in the consultation but cannot attend the meeting can submit their views by visiting www.cqc.org.uk/syeprincessalexandra, be email to enquiries@cqc.org.uk, by letter to CQC, Citygate, Gallowgate, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 4PA or by phone on 03000 616161

Parents raise thousands for charity in their son's memory

FUNDRAISING footballers helped to raise £8,000 for Cystinosis Foundation UK with a sponsored match.

The Joma Challenge Cup saw Harlow Town take on Kings Lynn in memory of Jack, the son of Hawks boss Danny Chapman, who died of the rare disorder in 2009.

There is no cure for cystinosis. Jack inherited the disease from his parents Chapman, 34, and his wife Sue, who carry the cystinosis gene.

Chapman's second son Harry, three, carries both the faulty gene and a corrective gene like his parents.

The former Barnet and Leyton Orient player said: "We had a really good day. I think we raised about £8,000 and that was fantastic, really good."

"I was disappointed with the attendance for the main match against Kings Lynn. There was only 100 people there."

Harlow Town lost the match against Kings Lynn, 2-1.

Academy's proposal to build classrooms

Plan for single-storey block submitted to the council

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A SECONDARY school has submitted proposals to build a new four-classroom building to help meet the demand for places.

Burnt Mill Academy Trust is applying for planning permission from Harlow Council to build a single-storey extension next to the current technology block.

Paul Williams, assistant headteacher, said: "They [the new classrooms] are going to be for English and humanities but they will have a multi-use element to them.

"We have got funding through the department of education as part of an initiative to help outstanding schools."

"We are confident of getting it through," he added.

The First Avenue school was the town's most sought after secondary in the 2015 admissions process, with 748 applicants listing Burnt Mill as a preference.

All 210 places were immediately filled with 179 more applicants put on a waiting list.

The demand for places was so overwhelming this year that Burnt Mill executives offered some students a place at its sister school, Forest Hall in Stansted

Mountfitchet.

While the new classrooms will help to relieve pressure within the current school intake, staff have not commented on whether it will lead to an increase in the number of places on offer.

Mr Williams continued: "We are unable to say if this will change our admission policy.

"We have become popular and oversubscribed, but we want to accommodate as many as we can."

The new classrooms will be next to the technology block and visible from the road.

Oversubscription is a problem throughout Harlow with all five schools full and with students on waiting lists.

Harlow Council registered the application last month and a consultation will now be held for residents to comment. A decision will then be made by the authority's development committee.

The school is hoping the new classrooms will be ready for use by Easter 2016.

In brief

MP will vote against revoking hunt ban

HARLOW: MP Robert Halfon has said he would be prepared to vote against his own party to oppose the re-introduction of fox hunting.

The hunting ban had been due to be reviewed in the Houses of Parliament on Tuesday, but the vote was postponed after the SNP refused to take part.

Conservative MPs were largely expected to overturn the hunting ban, which had been enforced by a Labour government in 2004.

The Harlow MP said in a statement: "After careful consideration I have come to the view that the Hunting Act should not be changed and I was planning to vote against the proposals.

"As the vote has been postponed, I can confirm that when the vote comes back to Parliament I will be voting against the amendment.

"I appreciate the many residents who wrote to me in a courteous and constructive manner which has had an important impact on my thinking."

Car and van stolen

HARLOW: A blue Ford Fiesta was stolen from Oldhouse Croft in Harlow on Monday.

The vehicle was stolen around 8pm and has the registration number EX13SRU.

A Peugeot van was also stolen over the weekend. The white medium sized van, registered NC11VZY, was stolen between July 10 and July 20 from Edinburgh Gate, Harlow.

Fond farewell to nursery leavers

LITTLE SAINTS: A popular children's tale was re-enacted as a Harlow pre-school said farewell to children who are heading for primary school.

The 19 children leaving the Hobbs Cross Road nursery re-told The Very Hungry Caterpillar with props and acting, as well as reminiscing about a wonderful time at the nursery.

Pre-school manager Sophie Smith said: "We watched video clips of the children talking about what they would like to be when they grow up and what they will miss when they leave the pre-school."

"There was not a dry eye in the room."

Breakfast club

FRESHWATERS: A new breakfast club will offer a tasty start to the day for the school's pupils who may otherwise miss an important meal.

Year 4 and Year 6 looked at the African nations of Zimbabwe and the Democratic Republic of Congo, while Year 5 studied Poland. Year 3 and Reception kept things closer to home by studying Ireland and the UK.

Organiser and Year 1 teacher Serena Keep said: "It was a very exciting and memorable week."

SUCCESS: Oscars-style party at cinema gives graduates a glamorous send off

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

STAR students at Harlow College enjoyed the red carpet treatment at their very own Oscars ceremony to round off a successful year.

Graduates from media, journalism, photography and animation courses received awards for their stunning projects during the glitzy ceremony which was held at Harlow Cineworld.

Prizes including best actor and actress, best animation, best documentary and best graphic designer were handed out by second year media student Donald Matanga.

Among the guests who attended the event were college principal Karen Spencer and chairman of governors Paul Taylor.

Amazing

Hosting the glamorous event was Donald Matanga, a second year media student who won the award for best presenter. "I was nervous at first but the audience was amazing and the atmosphere was really good," he said afterwards.

"It was a great send off for everyone and the work shown was the result of blood, sweat and tears."

Assistant academy manager Delta Muntean said: "The stu-

"The Oscars is an opportunity to showcase students' work and also a chance for them to see it on the big screen."

This was Harlow College's second Oscars and once again it was judged to be a great success. Some of the students' work was put on display at the Gibberd Gallery in Harlow Civic Centre.

Chillax, we made our own igloo

CHILDREN at a Harlow nursery have been chilling out during the recent hot spell in an igloo created from hundreds of plastic milk bottles.

The tots at Rum Tum Tugger, in Riddings Lane, have been using the space to chat, read and play games.

Created from over 600 bottles, the igloo was a joint project with four Year 10 students from nearby Passmore Academy.

COOL CRIB: Nursery children relax in the plastic bottles igloo

The bottles had been collected by children over a number of weeks and their efforts were boosted by the Epping branch of coffee shop chain Caffè Nero, which donated a large number.

Nursery owner Jill Pascale said: "The children are loving the igloo and enjoy looking at the way light shines through the bottles. It was been a great resource and offers a calm space for children to relax."

"I would like to thank Caffè Nero which has been fantastic in donating so many bottles."

HEADTEACHER FOR THE DAY: Emmanuel Frimpong, Liam Gatland and headteacher Anne-Marie McCann

Children enjoy challenge of school leadership role

TWO children at St Alban's Primary School in Harlow stepped out of the classroom and followed in the footsteps of their head teacher during a role-swap day.

Emmanuel Frimpong and Liam Gatland dressed up for the top job in which they shadowed the First Avenue school's headmistress Anne-Marie McCann.

The pair were chosen after winning a lottery but remained unphased by their new, if temporary, status.

"They had a really good day, and remained surprisingly level headed," said deputy head teacher Patrick Murphy. "With Mrs McCann they thought about appropriate punishments and in previous years students have suggested that pupils should be handed 10 detentions for stepping out of line."

"But it did not go to their head and they really got into character with a lot of energy. Of course, Mrs McCann, enjoyed watching her students rise to the occasion."

Residents fear new junction is a 'done deal'

Council say plan will reduce town's traffic

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PLANS for a new M11 junction have been met with anger by residents who fear it will destroy a quiet area of Harlow.

At public consultations in Old Harlow and Sheering this week, residents were shown Essex County Council plans of the proposed new junction 7A.

The proposals will see the B-road Gilden Way transformed into a much busier connection between the M11 and A414.

It is hoped junction 7A will relieve pressure on the town's roads and the overcrowded junction 7 by providing an alternative place to join and exit the M11.

An Essex County Council spokesman said: "Harlow has significant traffic congestion during peak times which will get worse as Harlow grows.

"A solution is needed to reduce the increasing strain on the local and wider road network.

"Essex County Council has been investigating options to improve access in and out of the Harlow area, including options for a new connection between Junction 7 and 8, called junction 7A."

However, residents said the development, which could take 15 years to complete, could lead to noise pollution, congestion and the urbanisation of what is currently a quiet area.

After viewing the plans, a resident, who asked not to be named, said: "I am strongly opposed, the people of Old Harlow do not want it and we are up in arms.

"All the data gathered (about the number of cars and noise pollution) is hypothetical and gathered through mobile phones."

A resident of Gilden Way said: "I have trouble crossing the road at the moment, how will I be able to manage when (a predicted) 35,000 cars pass through? It will be impossible."

Concerns were also raised that the new junction was a "done deal" despite the council insisting the proposals are still at a discussion stage.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon said that a new junction is necessary but should only be approved if consultations fully address residents' concerns over: The location of the junction, the impact of the junction on residents and whether sufficient infrastructure can be built to deal with the consequences of an extra road.

He said: "One thing that everyone is united on is that we need a new M11 junction. A new junction would dramatically decrease the amount of traffic, make it easier for people to get to and from work and increase property prices.

"However, there remain concerns from Old Harlow residents about the infrastructure, noise, traffic and air pollution.

"This is not the end of the consultation process, it is vital that residents get their views to me."

TAKE OFF:
Harlow's Rose Marnie is heading for the Miss England final

Rose makes her way to Miss England final

BEAUTY queen Rose Marnie is showing more than just good looks in her quest to be named Miss England.

The 21-year-old, of Staple Tye, Harlow, qualified for the final of the pageant after impressing judges with a photo shoot and her charity work.

She was one of 10 selected from the semi-final in Coventry's Kelham Hall and will return to the Midlands city to contest in the final 50 at the Ricoh Arena on August 13.

For the past six months Rose has worked with stop smoking service ACE, which is based in Harlow. She has specifically been working to help pregnant women quit.

Rose has also raised £4,000 for Miss England's charity Beauty with a Purpose as well as raising the profile of Age Concern and Fabulous and Beautiful.

Rose, a former Mark Hall Academy student who studied fashion and clothes design at Harlow College, said: "There were 65 girls competing for only 10 spots in the final and I am very proud to have made it through."

The youngest of three children, Rose was inspired to work for ACE after her grandmother developed lung disease COPD.

She said: "My family have been backing me 100 per cent and the experience has been amazing for my confidence." ■ Text MISSENGLAND44 to 63333 to vote for Rose.

STITCH IN TIME: Joanne Panter with Patrick Grant

Joanne picks up sewing tips from TV show judge Patrick

KEEN sewer Joanne Panter got a welcome surprise when her husband bought her a new sewing machine for her birthday.

For as well as the present, Joanne, who lives in Harlow, won a place on a half-day sewing session in London. And while at the session she met Savile Row tailor Patrick Grant, one of the judges on the BBC's Great British Sewing Bee.

During the session, which was held at the Singer Sewing School, Joanne and the other prizewinners received hints and tips as they customised a garment of their choice.

"My husband bought me a new Singer machine as a birthday present and I was really surprised and pleased when I found out I had always won a place at Patrick's sewing session," said Joanne, who was taught to sew by her grandmother.

"I'm a big crafter, particularly making cushions. I love the sense of achievement of cutting something up and then transforming it into something new."

According to the Craft & Hobby Trade Association, about 3.5m people in the UK make their own clothes using a sewing machine and 433,000 of them have only started sewing since 2013.

Advice team warning of fraudsters at work

Harlow CAB fears many incidents are not reported

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

STAFF at Harlow Citizens Advice Bureau dealt with more than 30 cases of people being targeted by scams and conmen last year.

But with only five per cent of people who have been scammed reporting it to the authorities, the figures are thought to be a fraction of the total number of scams targeting people in the local area.

The figures have been released to coincide with the launch of Scams Awareness Month, which aims to highlight how fraudsters can flourish if they go unreported.

The campaign, which is being supported by Trading Standards, is urging people to get advice if they think they've been conned and warn others to help stop scams from spreading.

Analysis of more than 20,000 scams reported across the country between April 2014 and March 2015 also reveals that different types of scam use different methods to approach people. It shows:

- More than a third (37 per cent) of cold call scams reported to the national charity are for professional and financial services.

- Two in five of all postal scams are lotteries or prize draws, inviting people to claim a prize for a competition they haven't entered.

- Four out of five doorstep scams are to do with home improvements and household services. Common scams are around central heating, insulation and roofing, to gas and electricity supplies and people posing as tree

12 tell-tale signs for spotting scams

- If it sounds too good to be true it probably is.
- If you haven't bought a ticket you can't win it.
- You shouldn't have to pay anything to get a prize.
- If in doubt, don't reply. Bin it, delete it or hang up.
- Contacted out of the blue? Be suspicious.
- Don't be rushed. Resist pressure to make a decision straight away.
- Never send money to someone you have never met.
- Walk away from job ads that ask for money in advance.
- Your bank will never attend your home to collect cash, your pin, payment card or chequebook if you are a victim of fraud.
- Your bank will never phone you to ask for your PIN or your online banking password. Your bank will never ask you to transfer money to a new account for fraud reasons.
- Suspect a phone scam? Hang up, wait five minutes to clear the line or use another phone to call your bank.
- Genuine computer firms do not make unsolicited phone calls to help you fix your computer.

surgeons.

- Two in five internet scams are about personal goods and services including cosmetics that never arrive, beauty treatments that aren't what they say on the tin and slimming pill subscription traps.

Tiziana Groom, chief executive of Harlow Citizens Advice, said: "We've advised on 30 scam cases in the past year but we know there are likely to be many more cons at large."

"Reporting scams is the only way to get them closed down, so we're asking people to inform the authorities to stop others from being targeted."

"If you've been scammed or you're worried about a potential scam, there are also ways in which we can help."

Cllr Roger Walters, Essex County Council's lead member for trading standards, said

"Scams thrive on silence because fraudsters know that in many cases victims are too ashamed to report what happened to them."

"We're urging people to lift the lid on scams and start talking about suspicious email, junk mail, online ads or door-to-door sellers operating in their area," he said.

"Scams are run by professional con artists and it can be very hard to know what to look out for. Our advice is that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you're contacted out of the blue be on your guard, and never give your bank details out unless you are certain you know who the person is, and that you can trust them."

- If you believe you may have been scammed contact the Essex Adviceline 03444 770808 or the Citizens Advice consumer service on 03454 040506.

Budding actor get tips from director

Anne Fletcher pays visit to Kevin Adams Academy

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

HOLLYWOOD director Anne Fletcher was wowed by the performances of students at Kevin Adams Academy when she visited.

The lady behind films such as The Proposal and 27 Dresses led a seminar and Q&A session with all the students at the academy aged between five and 20.

Taking time out from promoting latest film Hot Pursuit, which stars Reese Witherspoon and Sofia Vergara, Anne was impressed with the talent at the Passmore school-based academy.

"It went amazingly, it was great for students to get an insight into the business and exactly what is involved," said academy manager Kevin Adams.

Advice

"She saw them in their environment and watched there solo pieces before holding workshops. She saw all of the students and gave them all specific advice which was great."

The Fame Academy choreographer turned dance teacher said he is "lifelong friends" with Anne and having her lead a session was a "dream".

"The students were totally in awe of her and could hardly keep it together. It's amazing to see the director of films you have in your collection watching you perform," said Kevin.

"Anne picked out some of the students she wanted to see and a few of them had the spark she was looking for."

"My fingers are crossed and I would push my students forward if she ever made a film in Britain."

While Anne quite often visits Britain she had not led sessions at the academy before, but Kevin says her presence is a real coup that will give students motivation for future productions.

Kevin said: "The positive feedback from Anne was a really great moment for the academy. We have been unable to have her come before because she has such a busy schedule, but hopefully this could open doors for future guests."

For information about joining the academy call 07745 623574 or visit its website at www.kevinadamsacademy.com.

Essex Police and Crime Commissioner Nick Alston will not stand for re-election

ESSEX Police and Crime Commissioner Nick Alston has announced that he will not be standing for re-election.

Mr Alston was the first to hold the new post created under the last coalition government and was elected in November 2012.

The next PCC election will be held in May 2016.

Mr Alston said he will retire to spend more time with his family and focus on other projects.

In a statement released by Essex Police on Tuesday, Mr Alston said: "I feel immensely privileged to be serving as the first Police and Crime Commissioner for Essex."

Sustainable

"In addition the chief constable and I have been working to plan a strong sustainable future for Essex Police against a backdrop of the need to manage deep reductions in funding."

"At the heart of this has been a focus on building a more professional police force, with more effective working relationships with partner agencies, to keep the people of Essex safe from harm."

"After much thought and reflection, and after discussions with respected colleagues and my family, I have decided not to stand for re-election."

"This was a really difficult decision. But after a working life of more than 40 years, 35 years of which have been in public service, I will retire in May 2016 to be able to enjoy spending more time with my wife and family, including my three young and vivacious grandchildren."

He added: "Like many, I was initially uncertain about the role of PCC but I was determined that we should get off to the best possible start in Essex, a county, and a police force, that care deeply about."

"However, I am now convinced that the direct, open and transparent accountability to local people that PCCs provide is becoming an exemplar of effective modern, local democracy."

"I will continue to do all I can to ensure that the force is funded and fit to face the challenges of modern policing not just this year and next but for many years to come."

"During the next year, until my very last day in office, I will continue to drive this work with energy, vigour and with a commitment to do all I can to help build a Safer Essex."

Essex Police Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh has reacted to the news by saying that Mr Alston had "improved transparency in policing" and "understanding of significant challenges" the force faces.

He said: "Nick's tenacity in scrutinising the force is complemented by the time he takes to speak and listen to officers of all ranks and communities from all backgrounds across the county. Nick's commitment to public service, intellect and deep-seated values have made a real contribution to our county."

Fabulous fun for little ones - and a space to relax for parents

WILD 'n' Wacky Ltd opened in May 2008 after identifying the need for a high quality play & party centre to serve the people of Harlow and its surrounding towns and villages.

Wild 'n' Wacky has been designed to offer an unrivalled customer experience by providing the highest levels of customer service, cleanliness, health & safety, and fun possible in indoor play and parties.

Recently runner up as Best Party Venue in Essex, Wild 'n' Wacky parties are famously generously catered and just great fun! There are also special events such as the sell-out annual Halloween party, Frozen-themed events and recently break dancing Spiderman appearances. New of all these and more appear on the Wild 'n' Wacky Facebook page and website.

And now that Wild 'n' Wacky has turned five years old, the owners have just refurbished the centre, adding even more features for kids of all ages.

The new, larger baby area is now flooded with natural light, with gated access and its very own baby ball pond and interactive sound board.

The toddlers still have their popular ball pool and ball shower, but there is also a safari jeep feature and a little jungle hut for imaginative play. Older kids have the challenge of the vertical climbing net pit and "vertigo" panel.

And Wild 'n' Wacky hasn't forgotten the grown-ups either. The free customer wi-fi has been boosted, so customers can relax with a great cup of coffee and a complimentary newspaper whilst they catch up on emails or browse the web. And there is air-conditioning too!

The café has a five-star hygiene rating and has always been known for its fantastic coffee and hot chocolate. Now all the cakes served are freshly baked in-house by the Wild 'n' Wacky kitchen team: choose a cupcake or a slice of lemon drizzle, or banana chocolate chip loaf.

Wild 'n' Wacky is open seven days a week, from 9.30am to 6pm. Customers can also buy discounted three-month and annual passes.

With so much to enjoy, the whole family will want to come back time and time again.

RAINY DAY?

ANOTHER rainy day, the kids are getting restless and you're fresh out of ideas for things to do?

■ Building

You don't need a fancy set. Lolly stick cities, card towers, even buildings out of blocks, or forts out of boxes or pillows, will do

■ Card games

Card games are great for challenging young minds and creating hours of indoor fun. Grab a box of cards and check out our favourite traditional card games.

■ Puzzles

Exercise those creative, cognitive and problem-solving muscles. You can use a store-bought variety or have the kids make their own, by drawing a picture on a sturdy piece of cardboard, then use a pencil to outline puzzle pieces directly on their drawing. Cut out the pieces with a good pair of scissors, mix them up and get solving.

■ Paper-bag plays

Divide the kids into groups. Give each group a bag filled with props, such as a spoon, toy jewellery, a sock, ball or ribbon. Give them 15 mins to construct a play around the props.

■ Indoor basketball

All you need is a bucket and a rolled-up sock. Each player takes a turn at throwing the sock-ball into the bucket. When a player scores, he or she takes a step back and throws again until they miss. The player who shoots the ball in the bucket from the farthest distance wins.

Give mini-rugby a try this summer

HARLOW Rugby Club are keen to get as many kids enjoying mini rugby as possible.

And that's why they are running, in association with Active Essex and Community Games, a free open day so kids can go along and give mini rugby a try on Saturday July 18 from 10.45am.

Mini rugby is for girls and boys aged six (Year 2) to 12 (Year 7).

If you have children who may be keen to try rugby, take them along to give it go and see if they like it.

Mini rugby is a series of simplified versions of rugby to introduce kids to the game.

Timetable for the day

10.45: Arrival and registration at Harlow Rugby Club

10.55: Kids split into their age group sections (by school year, so kids can bring a friend from their class and have someone they know there to support them)

11.00: Warm up

11.00: Games

11.45: Break from the exercise to learn a song

12.00: More games

12.30: Closing ceremony, kids will gather to sing

12.40: Certificate presentations to the kids who have taken part

12.50: Finish and a chance to talk to the coaches with any questions

What do the kids get?

On the day, the kids will be presented with a certificate for taking part, but most of all it is hoped they leave having had a lot of fun and keen to go along again.

Do I need to sign up in advance?

Email pauloweneynon@gmail.com if you intend to take your child along. Please include your child's name, date of birth, school year, address and if they have any medical conditions.

How do we coach mini rugby at Harlow?

It's about a kids-centric approach so we put what they want at the centre of what we do. Kids turn up because they like playing games, so we'll play games, we'll ask them lots of questions, set them challenges and spend more time working in small groups for short periods of time on focused skills.

What do my kids need to bring?

Just turn up with a drink for your child and make sure they have trainers (or football boots if they have them) and some shorts and a shirt, no need to buy boots or any expensive kit at the moment – this is just a taster day.

How much does it cost?

This is a one-off session just for fun, so it is free!

Can I leave my child with you?

Sorry, no, not for this session - please stay and watch the session this time.

Who can I speak to?

Nothing left owing after production of Rent

A TERRIFIC young cast had Victoria Hall rocking with their performance of Rent - the powerful musical based on Puccini's famous opera La Boheme.

The show was Harlow Theatre Company's first musical in 18 years and an ambitious choice - but the audience loved every minute.

Originally seen off Broadway in 1996, Rent follows the lives of a group of impoverished young artists struggling to survive in New York City's East Village in the thriving days of Bohemian Alphabet City while living under the shadow of HIV/AIDS.

Roger, played by raspy-voiced Stefan Mullard, is a struggling musician in love with Mimi, a show-dancing, HIV-positive heroin-addict, played by the spectacular Chanelle Hayles.

Meanwhile, his mate Mark (Danny Hurley), an aspiring filmmaker, has been dumped by Maureen (Melissa Guest) for lesbian partner Joanne, played by Sarah Randall.

Tom, a computer geek, played by Lorenzo Culora, falls for drag queen, Angel, the magnificent Simon Carnell, who dies prematurely.

Director Jody Randall did a fantastic job with a young amateur cast and the dynamics and level of sound created by everyone on stage outshone many professional productions.

But what really raised the show to a professional standard was the performances of the cast who, without exception, did a fantastic job.

Danny and Stefan (who had the best male voice of the cast) had great chemistry, the latter also giving a terrific performance alongside Chanelle as Mimi.

Simon Carnell also gave a brilliantly funny, lively and touching performance as ill-fated Angel.

Among the highlights, Melissa's performance of Over the Moon was brave and totally bonkers. The most-well known song, Seasons of Love, was a great opener to the second act and I'll Cover You was a tender contrast to the rockier numbers.

The cast of 12 and a lively band - who were tucked away in the corner - prove big things can be achieved in small theatres.

Hoping for sunshine

ORGANISERS of LinkFest are hoping for sunny weather to match a stellar line up at their next free music festival in Harlow Town Park.

The second of three spectacular summer Sundays will be held at The Bandstand on July 26, with Expose, Scam 69 and Joanovarc headlining.

While black clouds dampened the spirit of May's show, LinkFest co-ordinator Jamie Pring said two to three thousand people could be descending on the town park if the sun comes out to play.

"We're praying for good weather and every day I am checking the forecast," he said,

"The weather is a massive part. We had a good line up in May, but the weather stopped people coming out and it's understandable - people don't want to get wet.

"At least in July the rain will be warmer," he laughed.

Other bands performing will be The Heaters, Me & Him, The Greasy Slicks and Harlow Rock School, to give the festival a mix of bands playing covers and original music.

While touring bands Scam 69 and Expose will be guaranteed a good reception, Jamie is particularly looking forward to seeing the all-girl band Joanovarc, who have recently supported American rock band Toto at a festival in France.

Jamie said: "I recently saw them (Joanovarc) in London and they were awesome. They are playing professionally and have been to Japan this year. They play a great mix of covers and new music.

"I'm very pleased to have Expose and it has taken us three years to get Scam to come down, but that should be great.

"Greasy Slicks are another fantastic young band who play original music, so all in all it is a great line-up and people will come with the weather stays dry."

LinkFest is being billed as a fantastic, free event the whole family can enjoy, and also as a festival that can unite the community.

Jamie has worked hard promoting the festival through social media since the decision was made to change the former one weekend format to three Sunday's of live music for 2015.

He added: "It's a really fun event and people should come for a fantastic free day out.

"I want to thank the Harlow GPCA for their help, as without them LinkFest wouldn't happen."

Pub-based drama funny but flawed

EIGHT people walk into a bar with a story to tell. It sounds the beginning of a bad joke, but it's actually the basis of a quirky play staged among punters in Harlow's Red Lion pub.

Early Doors tells the story of a brother and sister on their first night in charge of a local that used to belong to their mum and their job is not being made harder by a mad ensemble of characters who you could only ever find in a pub.

In fact it's hard to work out who is a character and who is not, with the cast mingling with the audience and even pulling punts before the show begins.

When the larger than life characters are talking casually among each other it feels as if you could be eavesdropping on someone else's crisis. Early Doors invites you to be nosy for a night.

Some of the characters are fantastic creations. Louise Haggerty expertly portrays the down-on-her-luck Leah, while Tom Haywood at times steals the show as the cringe-worthy but occasionally inspired man-child Bunny.

Indeed, there is a lovely flow to the play and a chemistry between the cast that makes them a fun bunch to hang out with for an evening.

At the end of the show, when the cast leave the bar in character and re-emerge, it's a surprise to see them dressed and acting normally.

Director and star Jimmy Fairhurst said beforehand that an audience can expect three nights out in one, with Pamela Dwyer nailing a maverick open-mic regular as Joanna B and Andrew Butler's Steve breaking the fourth wall with a pub quiz that the audience can participate in.

But somewhat inevitably the production falls short in its ambition and with lack of character development and the progression of any real plot.

Both Steve and Joanna B give rousing sob stories before being forgotten as another character booms into view. It's quite a surprise when the show ends, as the whole thing felt a bit unfinished.

At only an hour in length, the show perhaps takes on one character too many with a cast of eight troubled joint leads all rushing to tell their tale at breakneck speed without any room to breathe.

One thing that should be praised is the originality of the show and when Jimmy said it would be a play like you'd never seen before, he meant it.

It's also great fun and although the story does come up short, it does at least give a sensation of believability. These could be real people on just one night, it is a snapshot of someone's reality.

Early Doors isn't just theatre for people that don't do theatre and, despite its flaws, offers a really engaging and unique show that covers a range of topics.

Back fresher than ever after battering

IT'S been more than 20 years since they were formed, but King Prawn are back and tastier than ever. The ska/punk seven piece have a hugely-anticipated album in the pipeline and are looking forward to a glorious summer of gigs and festivals.

Undeterred by the challenges that come with reforming after a 10-year hiatus, King Prawn are heading back to square one for a special concert at Harlow's leading music venue and drummer Nikolai Jones is excited.

"The music we're making now is the best we've ever done and I can't wait for the fans to hear it," he says.

"I am really enjoying it now for what it is."

Since reforming in 2013, King Prawn have played sparingly, but will be returning to The Square on August 1 ahead of the BoomTown festival in Hampshire.

Nikolai says: "Some of the original Square shows were revolutionary and I remember the warmth generated from the audience. I think there is something about new towns that just builds a lot of energy."

"We have not played many gigs since our reform. When we toured originally we would do hundreds in a year, but we want to put all our energy into fewer shows, making them really special."

"We are keeping the gigging on the low down until the new album is coming out."

Many bands have breaks, but 10 years is a long time by anybody's standards and Nikolai used the time to spend with his family, play in other bands and do odd jobs to make ends meet.

He said the move to come back was mutual through a feeling that King Prawn still had things to say.

"I think we felt we had something to offer. I only wanted to come back and do it again if we were going to be making new music and we are in the stages of writing a new album now," he said.

"I don't think we have changed the way we feel and we always want to sing about the stuff that matters." "We sing about our indignation about how the world works."

"I cannot stand the nostalgia trip, but what drove it (the reunion) was the chance to make new music."

"We have been recording for a long time now, and I feel our music is a bit more thought out but we still have the same passion and drive. The biggest change I think would be Al (Rumjen, the lead singer) whose lyrical style has changed from being confrontational to more abstract and poetic."

However, the band have had to reform without original member Babar Luck, who is now pursuing other projects, leaving the band without a bassist.

"When we split, it felt pretty final and reforming was out of the question. When I left the band it had been on the back of 10 intense years and that is why so many bands break up."

"You sometimes need to know when you should take a six months or a year's break from the band and come back recharged."

"I feel we are getting on better now than ever and we are making progress as a band."

"We begged Babar to come back, but he said no, he's doing his own thing now, and you've got to respect that."

"We now have a new bassist in Zac, who played in a band I was part of during the hiatus."

King Prawn have never been a band to make music for the sake of it, and their politically-charged lyrics have always been in response to society's injustices.

The political landscape has changed in the 10 years since the band last released an album in 2003, but judging by their posts on Facebook, King Prawn are more engaged and angrier than ever.

"I don't think we have changed the way we feel and we always want to sing about the stuff that matters," said Nikolai. "You hear some bands release music where they don't really say anything at all and I never want to do that. We sing about our indignation about how the world works."

Nikolai says that after an intense period of writing and recording, the end is finally in sight for the new album with a slated release date of 2016 - but getting it out could be a problem.

"We've recorded so much I think we have almost enough for two albums and we'll be going in and out of the studio over summer to do a few songs here and there."

"There are a lot of things to tie up though, we haven't yet got a label to release an album though - but we'll see."

While 2016 may sound a long wait, fans can at least catch up with the unique ska-punk outfit this summer at The Square.

Tickets cost £15 and can be bought from: www.thesquareharlow.com

THE BIG FILM

FILMGUIDE

WORTH A WATCH

Mike's TV Film of the Week

HALF NELSON DRAMA Film4, Monday, July 20, 1.15am (Tuesday)

Ryan Gosling's breakthrough, Half Nelson, is the sort of movie that gives you hope for modern American 'indie' cinema.

For a start, it is overtly and unashamedly political without being simplistic or tub-thumping or dull – something mainstream Hollywood finds virtually impossible. Director and co-writer (with Anna Boden) Ryan Fleck is clearly left-leaning and very bright, like Gosling's character Dan Dunne. Presumably he doesn't share Dunne's less salubrious qualities.

Dan is a history teacher in a New York inner-city school. We only see him with one class of pupils, non-whites aged around 13, and he seems to have as much rapport with them as is possible given the circumstances – he's out to make them think rather than just learn. He also coaches the girls' basketball team.

The principal chastises him for departing from the syllabus (on the Civil Rights movement) but don't worry, this isn't a ghettoised Dead Poets Society – she'd have more to say if she knew of his extracurricular activities involving cocaine and crack.

After a basketball game, he waits until everyone has gone and retires to a toilet cubicle for a smoke, only to be discovered by one of the girls, Drey (Shareeka Epps). The film is their story, and it's fed to us in a pleasingly off-hand way – we learn about their lives as we watch.

Dan's parents, still alive and well, were radicals in the 60s: 'You stopped the war,' he tells his mum, only for her to decline the credit. He was in a relationship with a woman, and now she's back, drug-free and engaged to someone else. He is having a very casual relationship with another teacher.

Drey lives with her mum, a single parent working inhuman hours to make ends meet. Her older teenage brother used to work for local drug dealer Frank (Anthony Mackie) but is now in jail. Frank, in his own way, is trying to look out for Drey, just as Dan is. It just so happens that one of them is a dealer and the other an addict.

Because of its low-key, naturalistic style, Half Nelson sneaks up on you, and then floors you. There are no easy answers here, but Fleck – who stops the film occasionally to have one of the kids give us a history lesson – sees hope in the most unlikely places, and the final shot is perfect. Gosling, who may turn out to be one of the greats, is extraordinary, but no more than Mackie and possibly less so than Epps. Full marks to the entire class.

Mike Whiteway

Small but powerful

Ant-Man

FANTASY COMEDY (12A) 117 minutes

Director: Peyton Reed

Starring: Paul Rudd, Michael Douglas, Evangeline Lilly, Michael Peña, Corey Stoll

After the spectacular, over-the-top excesses of Avengers: Age of Ultron, Marvel has come up with the perfect antidote to complete Phase Two of its cinematic universe.

Ant-Man is a smaller, slicker, smarter superhero film that doesn't get bogged down in exposition or having to give lots of characters certain amounts of screen time. But although the scale might be smaller (in every way), this isn't a film without ambition or excitement – it just doesn't set itself such grandiose parameters as recent Marvel movies.

Partly this is because it's about a lesser-known character of the Marvel universe, albeit one who has been pivotal to the Avengers since their inception, both through Hank Pym's original Ant-Man and his successor in the insectoid suit, Scott Laing.

In the big screen version, Scott Lang (Paul Rudd) is at the centre of the action, a convicted but very likeable thief as played by Paul Rudd who has just been released from prison and is determined to stay on the straight and narrow for his daughter's sake.

That wish is short-lived as he becomes embroiled in a plot by the ex-con pals he now lives with to break into a rich old man's safe.

Little does Lang realise that the heist is a set-up, effectively his audition for another job that's being masterminded by the old man who happens to be Hank Pym (Michael Douglas), the original Ant-Man. Pym is worried about the threat of his former protégé, Darren Cross (Corey Stoll), a brilliant scientist who's ousted Pym from his own tech company and is trying to invent his own shrinking technology – something Pym refused to share with him during his Ant-Man days.

Pym's plan is to get Lang to use his Ant-Man suit (which not only shrinks him to ant size but affords him super strength and the ability to communicate with the insects) to break into Cross's lab and sabotage his plans. Pym's daughter Hope (Evangeline Lilly) is less than impressed with Lang and thinks she should be the one to don the suit, which raises tensions between the three of them.

So, it's a heist involving a shrinking man, a whole load of ants, at least one megalomaniac scientist and a lot of father-daughter issues. Well, Marvel do like to do things a bit differently.

More than anything, Ant-Man is fun. Its great strength is its leading man, Paul Rudd. He might not be the most obvious choice as a thief or jailbird but he's got charm to spare and does the action, drama and comedy required in the film with style – and brings a nice sense of mischief to the character.

Douglas is subdued but brings a bit of Hollywood gravitas to the film while Lilly gives Hope a fiery intensity and Michael Peña's Luis, Laing's former cell mate, is hilariously verbose.

Without the complex, interlocking storylines of the Avengers, Ant-Man is a lot more straightforward and streamlined movie. It rattles along nicely with a winning blend of action, comedy and emotion, climaxing with a very funny and very satisfying finale.

There'll always be the thought of what what the film would have been like if original director Edgar Wright (Shaun of the Dead, Hot Fuzz) had stayed on board the project after eight years of developing it. It may have been more distinctive, more offbeat than what Peyton has offered up, but it's a moot point. Peyton has done a solid job and created a very likeable superhero movie.

For Marvel fan boys (like me), there are plenty of references to the characters' origins and comic book roots as well as a couple of scenes that hint at the future crossover potential with other MCU characters. Stay to the end of the credits too for some tasty extra scenes.

It may not be as epic or explosive as other entries in the Marvel Cinematic Universe, but Ant-Man is hugely enjoyable and provides a lighter, quirkier take on the superhero genre.

RATING: ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ Good

ANT PLAN: Paul Rudd as Scott Lang and Michael Douglas as Hank Pym in Marvel's latest big screen superhero offering

The spirit of Charlie is hanging around

The Gallows

HORROR/THRILLER/ROMANCE (12A) 117 minutes

Director: Peyton Reed

Starring: Reese Mishler, Pfeifer Brown, Ryan Shoos, Cassidy Gifford.

FORGET mathematics, English literature, history, science, geography and the American high school curriculum.

The supposedly clued-up teenagers in Travis Cluff and Chris Lofing's low budget thriller urgently need an education in the basics of horror movie survival.

The thinly-sketched protagonists appear blissfully unaware of any found footage horrors that have been haunting cinemas since The Blair Witch Project popularised the format in 1999, and stumble blindly to their doom with cameras rolling.

In The Gallows, this shaky handheld footage is presented as official evidence - "Property of the Beatrice Police Department, 28/10/2013" - which is the filmmakers' cursory explanation for how recordings from multiple devices have been neatly spliced into a fractured narrative for our viewing displeasure.

Whenever a student is left on his or her own - and is therefore likely to come a-cropper - main footage from an omnipresent camera jumps to a video recording from the lone character's smartphone, so we are treated to their brush with death in jittery close-up, replete with heavy breathing.

The film opens in 1993 at the first night of Beatrice High School's production of a period drama called The Gallows, which bears a passing resemblance to Arthur Miller's The Crucible.

Something goes tragically awry during the play's denouement and student Charlie Grimille dies in front of distraught parents and classmates.

Twenty years later, football jock Reese Houser (Reese Mishler) hurriedly learns lines for the anniversary production of The Gallows at Beatrice High in order to impress lead actress Pfeifer Ross (Pfeifer Brown).

"Everybody knows he's going to choke like Charlie," sniggers

Reese's best friend Ryan (Ryan Shoos), in bad taste, from behind his camera.

On the eve of opening night, Reese doubts himself so Ryan makes a bold suggestion: they should break into the school and destroy the set of the play, which would force the cancellation of The Gallows.

Not only that, Ryan will bring along his camera to document this wanton destruction, because that's a sensible course of action for students who want to get away with a criminal act.

Aided by Ryan's cheerleader girlfriend Cassidy (Cassidy Gifford), the buddies enter the auditorium under the cloak of darkness, unaware that the spirit of Charlie stalks the corridors and is intent on bloody revenge.

The Gallows boasts a couple of half-hearted scares but this is a predictable and instantly forgettable tale of things that go bump in the night with the cast hampered by a flimsy script while deaths are hopelessly contrived.

Lenses point in the direction of ghoulish goings-on with uncanny precision and when common sense dictates a hasty exit, the young protagonists spend their final seconds instead framing a perfect shot of their demise.

What a stroke of luck for Beatrice Police's investigation, though regrettably not for us.

Damon Smith

■ The Gallows is released on Friday.

WORTH A WATCH

ON TV

GRAND DESIGNS REAL LIFE Channel 4, Thursday, July 16, 8pm

In the second of four special programmes, Kevin McCloud looks at the challenges of self-building in the UK's most remote places, where beautiful landscapes often meet savage weather.

Drawing on footage from 15 years of the programme, as well as new visits to extraordinary and incredible homes, Kevin reveals which designs work best, and why.

Along the way, he interviews pioneers at the forefront of architecture in the wilderness and sees the astonishing lengths people go to live on the edges of society.

BIG BROTHER: THE LIVE FINAL REALITY Channel 5, Thursday, July 16, 9pm

It can't be easy to keep coming up with new twists on the Big Brother format, but somehow this series has managed it. Whether it's bringing back legendary former housemates, turning the BB abode into a hotel, or taking a trip through time, this latest run has been hugely entertaining. However, only one of the class of 2015 can win, and it's time for the public to make their final decision.

Emma Willis takes charge of the proceedings as she whittles the hopefuls down one by one, taking them through some of the highs and lows of their time on TV.

And if you're wondering how you will get through the rest of the summer without a regular fix of BB, don't despair - the Celebrity version is due to begin soon.

You seem to have more than your fair share of work to get through over the coming days, but you have the power of Mars behind you to act on your instincts with authority and intelligence. A great time to tie up loose ends and to work out what you want to do with your life. Fresh stars and new beginnings in relationships also make this a weekend to remember. Ring now for a full reading.

'...Trust Your Estate Agent We Do Know What We Are Talking About!...'

I know estate agency is a competitive business, you live or fall by your skills and there is no reward for trying you only get paid on 100% success rate. But, and I repeat but, we are also providing a service to many who haven't a clue how to buy or sell a home and that is when your integrity and honesty comes in front of the prize for success, well that is my view anyway.

Sometimes agents are their worst own enemy, take this genuine example which occurred recently.

We are asked in, as with a few other agents to give a price/value and prove our services are the best in town.

We are appointed, as the only agent amongst strong competition. We set a highish price and find plenty of interest and agree a deal in excess of the ask price.

Client delighted and the buyer is over the moon.

Letters published, sale in hand, or so we thought.....

Move on a few days, the seller is wondering around a largish supermarket in town and bumps into one of the other agents "who lost out".

This 'person' tells the seller, he is under-priced, should ask £10k more (he didn't mention it previously) and he has buyers waiting and also make a few uncomplimentary remarks about us.

What a nice little spotty greasy person,

The seller is sucked in, sacks us and dumps our buyer who is not a very happy man.

Two weeks later, has the house for £10k more? Funny that, no they haven't.

Alan.

TESTED Land Rover Discovery Sport

MORE SPACIOUS AND STYLISH

The Land Rover Discovery never did sporty at all well. It had a vast array of other qualities that put it right near the top of the family 4x4 tree but on-road dynamics were never one of its big draws.

If you wanted a car that handled a bit better, you graduated to the Range Rover Sport, a car that shared plenty of the Discovery's underpinnings, but which featured suspension that was geared a little more to the keen driver.

Now there's another option. If the Evoque isn't big enough and a Range Rover Sport is just too expensive, why not try the Discovery Sport? Brought into the range to pension off the Freelander and featuring 5+2 seating, pricing that looks sensible, an efficient range of 'Ingenium' TD4 diesel engines and some very sharp styling, it looks another instant winner from Land Rover.

On to engines, which are Land Rover's advanced 2.0-litre four cylinder Ingenium TD4 units, shared with the Range Rover Evoque and designed to deliver improved efficiency, along with class-leading torque and power.

The most affordable TD4 unit in the range comes with 150PS and 350Nm of torque, but it's only offered with this car in five-seat form. Here, 62mph from rest occupies 11s on the way to 112mph.

Most though, will want the 180PS variant which comes only with the seven-seat layout and delivers a much lustier 430Nm of torque. Here, there's a maximum speed of 117mph, while 62mph from rest takes 9.4s, though you can reduce this figure by a second if you take up the option of the slick nine-speed ZF auto gearbox many owners will want.

More importantly, this variant has enough pulling power to permit a towing capability of up to 2,500kgs when the optional Tow Pack is fitted.

Both the TD4 powerplants come mated exclusively to 4WD. This, by the way, is a proper permanent set-up rather than the less effective 'on-demand' AWD system that this car's less capable competitors use – and which Land Rover itself offers on this model in other markets.

Even if you'd never seen a picture of the Discovery Sport, you could probably generate a reasonably accurate mental sketch of it were you to imagine crossing a Range Rover with a five-door Evoque.

It's a really handsome piece of design that instantly makes even a good-looking rival like the Volvo V60 look old. It also serves to make the conservative Audi Q5 look positively lumpy.

The wheels are pushed nicely to each corner and there's that distinctive canted forward

C-pillar profile that became such a Freelander signature.

Land Rover describes the seating arrangement as '5+2' rather than a full seven-seater: that's because the rear-most seats are designed largely for kids and occasional use.

The middle row of seats can be reclined, slid back and forth by 160mm, and also splits 60:40. They're also 5cm higher than the fronts, which affords a good view out. Boot space measures a useable 195-litres with all seats up, but the Discovery Sport is likely to spend most of its life in five-seat mode, in which case you get a massive 830-litres. Fold both second and third rows and you can carry up to 1,698-litres.

In the Freelander era, there was always quite a price gap between Land Rover's compact and full-sized SUVs. Part of this Discovery Sport's remit is to narrow that, this car there to push the brand's compact SUV offering up-market, which in turn makes room for the company's new-generation Defender model to slot in beneath.

That explains pricing that sits in the £33,000 to £43,000 bracket for mainstream models, which are powered by the brand's latest 2.0-litre TD4 'Ingenium' series diesel engines. There's a choice of two – a 150PS unit you can only specify if you're happy to have this car in five-seat form with a manual gearbox. Or a 180PS unit that only comes with the seven-seat layout and provides the choice of either manual transmission or a nine-speed automatic that's offered at an £1,800 model-for-model premium.

Across the range, buyers are offered the choice between four trim levels – 'sE', 'sE Tech', 'HSE' and 'HSE Luxury'. Whatever your choice, all variants come with permanent 4WD.

As for equipment, entry-level 'sE' trim gets you part-leather seating, climate control, a heated windscreen, cruise control and the inControl Remote.

This last piece of kit allows you to access all sorts of vehicle information via your smartphone. You can find your way back to the vehicle, check if the windows or doors are open, check fuel level and range, and even summon emergency assistance if required.

Verdict: Once again, Land Rover has looked at a market that many thought was packed to bursting point and spotted a significant gap, into which it's parked the Discovery Sport. What other car of this kind can seat seven, set off in the Serengeti and slot right in as easily in Sloane Square as it will in the tightest multi-storey carpark space? No other premium compact SUV can do all this.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

Big increase in crowds has Tom smiling

GATES rose by 75 per cent at Harlow Town FC last season, giving chief executive Tom Cunningham huge grounds for optimism for the future.

But it is the type of football being played that left a smile on his face.

"Our gates have gone up by 75 per cent. I can take a lot of satisfaction from that," beamed Cunningham, 59.

The club has come a long way since he came back to the town nine years ago, with the Harlow Arena stadium finally self-sufficient.

It all bodes well as first team boss Danny Chapman, the club's new director of football hopes to make it fourth time lucky by winning promotion from Ryman North in his third full season in charge.

"This year will be the first year that this club pays its way in all aspects. That's going to be an amazing achievement," said Cunningham.

Nearly 2000 people watched the final two home matches of the season.

"If we want to win the league next year our budget will be determined by the support we get through the door. I am not expecting 900 people here each week - that would be fantastic, but I have to be realistic," Cunningham said.

Achieve promotion

"If we can up our average from this year, the same as we did last year, that means that our budget will increase and hopefully we can achieve promotion. But it won't be done any other way.

"We are not going back to the old days where we have got bailiffs knocking on the door and we are chasing about to try and find money. It's not healthy. The club want the site to be totally sustainable. We are getting there.

"We have come on massively since the start of the season. Our attendances, the amount of people using the site, the feedback we are getting.

"If you look at our crowds in the 2013-14 season they were about 150 which was probably the norm [in Ryman North] - which is not sustainable. But we were averaging around 250-300 [in the 2014-15 season] which is not a big number, but is a huge jump in a small space of time.

"That shows you the interest that these children, these parents, these coaches and all these people that have become part of the football club, and are enabling us to grow. They will enable us to have a bigger budget.

"To get 900 people on our last game of the season was absolutely mind-blowing. I was so, so pleased. And then another 900 [in the play-off semi-final against Thurrock] when you have a different dynamic as you wouldn't have as many children here because it being at that time and they had school, but we had 900 people again.

"We scored 108 goals, we got the highest goalscorer in the league [Alex Read] again, he scored 42 goals and missed eight weeks of the season.

"We got 102 points. That one game does not take away all the smiles I had last season.

"It was a good place to be and I thoroughly enjoyed it. It was great."

Club's ambitious plans are Maid to measure

National South side are blueprint for Harlow Town FC

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HAWKS chief executive Tom Cunningham has revealed the club are using Conference South side Maidstone United as a blueprint to build a 3000 fan base.

Harlow Town got the idea to build their artificial pitch on the back of watching the success of the Kent club.

Their support grew after the 2012 installation of the first-ever purpose-built 3G surface at a non-league club at its new ground.

But Cunningham says it's not just about the plastic - Maidstone have grown a support base through revolutionising its youth set-up.

Harlow followed suit and now have 200 children in teams from U7 to U16.

This is establishing an affinity with the club as players and their families attend matches, enabling Harlow to flourish in the future.

These players and their families are the future fans of Harlow Town, Cunningham hopes.

"What we have had to do is educate people. The children, parents and coaches mean the Harlow Arena has a chance of not only being sustainable but hopefully following in Maidstone's footsteps," said former Leyton Orient and QPR professional Cunningham, 59.

"That's what we look at. We have the same catchment area [as Maidstone] of 90,000 people. What they have got over us is they have a little bit of history as far as support is concerned, and they have always had good support even when they were ground hopping. That support came together when they got their new site.

Support

"We have had the site. What we haven't had is the ground swell of support. But we are now generating that. Maidstone have always had the boys' teams, girls' teams.

"There is no reason why we cannot get 2000 or 3000 and emulate them and push on into the Football League eventually. But it has got to be done sustainably, but it will be done through that ground swell of support that we are not getting."

On the pitch the first team suffered a heartbreaking play-off semi-final defeat against Thurrock last season, having notched a record points tally of 102 in Ryman North.

This would have been enough to win the title and go up to Ryman Premier automatically in most seasons.

But the future remains bright at the Elizabeth Way club.

With qualified coaches at most age groups, Harlow's youth set-up has come on leaps and bounds in the last couple of years.

"Players are educated on site, coached on site, and this is their football club," said Cunningham.

"We probably have the biggest single thing for this football club and what we achieve as far as 12 games going on before the first team play, it puts a smile on my face. I think it puts a smile on everyone's faces.

"We have been here [at the Harlow Arena] nine years now and it's finally being used properly. The parents have been fantastic.

"Perhaps they have come to watch their niece, or their grandson, and then all of a sudden we have got supporters.

"The football club never had a youth policy. This is the first time it has ever happened in the club's history. The fact that we can do it on site because of the pitch makes it that much quicker. If we had to use outside areas which were grass, the uptake would have been a lot slower.

"But it isn't. The interest is there now. Why wouldn't the interest be there, when you look at the stadium and the pitch?

"When we first came here there was some great ideas from the [Harlow] Council and people who ran the football club. But there was no forethought. It has taken us five years to identify what needed to be done.

"We look at Maidstone as a blueprint for us. I have associated us with them because of the pitch. But if you look at Stevenage, if it can be achieved at Stevenage it can be achieved anywhere.

"If you look at the Bournemouth scenario, six years ago they were going to go skint. They were done. They have not done it by slinging money at it. They have done it prudently. So it can be achieved.

"We have made a huge financial commitment. But you can see it starting to turn and that gives us a great sense of achievement. If we can continue to grow and improve and that's why we're employing Danny [Chapman] as director of football. That means that we are moving in the right direction.

"We've got Sam Robshaw now as a full-time coach, Ryan Jessey is full-time. Two full-time people here working. We have five or six full-time staff but a few years ago there was just me and Jill [Dumoulin, events coordinator]. It is encouraging, but for me the only way that it's going to be sustainable is if we grow."

The stadium can hold more than 2500 people, but the way it was built means the club can develop the site and increase the capacity in the future.

"We looked at developing the site. That is something that's ongoing.

"The idea was to make it future proof to go into the Football League," Cunningham explained.

"We have the infrastructure population wise to go into the Football League. The stadium was built so if the club went into the Football League the stadium could be added on to.

"It's going to cost money. So we started it in a small way ourselves, but we are looking at generating funds that will benefit the community, benefit the housing stock, but would also benefit the football stock, because we would be able to grow on the site.

"This would put us in a position to get us promoted. This would all help the budget.

"We have got to make sure we don't get beyond ourselves. We spend what we can afford and that will be determined by people coming through the door.

"Hopefully we can get help from the council and the town to develop."

■ THE club still needs more coaches. If you are interested in helping coach one of the youth teams, call director of football Danny Chapman on 01279 443196.

Hawks host Concord Rangers in a friendly on Saturday.

The scheduled home match against Chelmsford City on Saturday July 25 has been cancelled due to the Clarets being offered a friendly against Brighton & Hove Albion. Harlow will instead host VCD Athletic on this date.

Eagles stint is bringing out the zest in Dawson

Loan signing says he has rediscovered love of game

By Oliver Harbord

oliver.harbord@hertsexnews.co.uk

LIAM DAWSON admitted he has fallen back in love with cricket during his loan spell at Essex.

The 25-year-old is on a one-month deal with the Eagles from Hampshire, despite playing seven LV= County Championship Division One games for his parent club this season.

Dawson had failed to get past 50 this campaign before making 99 in the 248-run County Championship Division Two win against Glamorgan which concluded yesterday (Wednesday).

Hampshire coach Dale Benkenstein had said he needed to go out on loan to improve his batting average.

The useful all-rounder has provided some extra balance to the Essex side, with the ability to open the batting and bowl left-arm off spin.

And it seems that Dawson has already clicked with his new team-mates.

He said: "I am absolutely loving my time here. It has been brilliant and I am delighted to be back playing all forms of cricket."

"I couldn't have gone into a better changing room, one that has made me feel so welcome."

"There are some good lads here and I have really enjoyed it."

"A change of scenery and a change of team means that I am really enjoying playing my cricket again and going out there to play and train every day.

"It was my decision, as I don't want to be playing second-team cricket."

Believe

"I want to be playing first-team cricket as much as I can and I believe that I should be doing that."

"I offer a lot with both bat and ball. I probably haven't bowled as much as I should have done at Hampshire, but hopefully here I can get a lot of overs and be a big part of the team."

"I am just enjoying playing cricket and have probably got the love of playing the game again, which is really good."

Essex should be keen to keep Dawson on until at least the end of the season, but he admitted the decision would be out of his hands.

"I honestly don't know what will happen after the month," he added.

"That is up to the two clubs and I guess it depends what Hampshire want to do."

"It's probably not my choice at the minute."

Dawson will be available for the Eagles' final two NatWest T20 Blast South Group games of the season.

With games against Middlesex this Friday and Kent on July 24, both at Chelmsford, Essex know that two wins will send them through to the quarter-finals.

Dawson added: "We have two games at Chelmsford in front of a sold-out crowd."

"It was never a great experience coming here with Hampshire, with the crowd on top of you, and so it will be nice to have the crowd on my side for once."

"They are two massive games. This late in the competition all you want is to have qualification in your own hands, which we have. If we win both games we are into the quarter-finals, it is as simple as that."

Seconds march to third victory

HARLOW Cricket Club's second team are continuing to turn their season around.

The side secured a third consecutive victory, this time against third-placed Gidea Park & Romford in the Shepherd Neame Essex League.

Gidea Park posted a formidable 303-8 in their 45 overs when batting first.

Lewis Aldred (3-41) was the pick of the Harlow bowlers.

Harlow's response was impressive with almost all their batsmen making a contribution. Dan Stopp (42) and skipper Andre Riddell (26) started well before a brilliant 110 partnership for the fifth wicket from Simon Baulcomb (51) and George Messenger (56).

Callum Sykes (32no) also chipped in as Harlow surpassed their target with two overs to spare, in what was a great advert for cricket.

The Harlow thirds earned ten bonus points from a high-scoring draw at home to Hainault & Clayhall.

Having won the toss and chosen to bat, Harlow lost Jack Davies (30) and Haider Rasool (37), but Muhammed Naeem scored a fantastic innings of 111, ably supported by Jeff Wiltshire (37) as Harlow declared on 291-9.

In reply, Hainault & Clayhall finished on 225-6. Faz Javed (4-26) was top Harlow wicket-taker.

The Harlow fourths got back to winning ways at Chingford with a five-wicket victory.

Chingford were all out for 179 (Tyler Dobson 3-36).

Harlow had around 90 minutes and 20 overs to bat, but Ilhan Mustafa (40), Ken Aldred (70) top scored as the target was reached with 14 overs left (183-5).

Max backed by ex-tennis star Henman

FORMER British No 1 tennis player Tim Henman has backed Harlow Tennis Club starlet Max McIlvenna for big things in the future.

Henman watched the 13-year-old compete at the HSBC Road to Wimbledon East regional qualifier at Gosling Sports Park in Welwyn Garden City.

Max (pictured above) was playing for a spot at August's HSBC Road to Wimbledon 14 & Under Challenge at the All England Club, but lost to Marcus Leong 5-7, 6-1, 10-8 in the first round.

Henman said: "Players are always disappointed when they miss out on qualifying for the HSBC Road to Wimbledon National Final and a chance to play on the grass courts at Wimbledon."

"Hopefully Max will be spurred on to greater achievements in his junior career and who knows maybe even to play at The Championships as a professional player in the future."

Max, who trains regularly at Harlow Tennis Club, based at Lutton Bush in Southern Way, said: "I enjoyed the match. He [Leong] did well to fight it out."

"For me to come back from 8-2 down in the tie-break was great, but he was very good to put it away at the end like that so well played to him."

"I had never lost to him before so that was a bad time to do it!"

"It would have been good to play at Wimbledon but hopefully I will get him next time."

The HSBC Road to Wimbledon National 14 & Under Challenge is the UK's largest national junior grass court tournament and forms part of HSBC's investment in the stars of the future.

Win for Harlow

HARLOW Tennis Club's men's second team defeated Henham seconds 9-6.

Steve Dodd and Paul Patterson won 6-4, 6-4 and lost their second 4-6, 2-6.

Kieran Wills and Bernie Catherall drew their first match 6-4, 4-6 and won their second game 6-4, 6-6.

TEN PIN BOWLING: John Ward was overall champion in the Harlow Senior Rollers 2014/2015 season. He triumphed with 299 points and a league average of 143.

Paul Chatterton, who had been unable to bowl for some weeks due to injury, was able to bowl on the final week and managed to hold on to second place with 280 points and a 120 average.

In third was Richard Maslanka, who had 266 points and a league average of 136. The men's high handicapped game was won by Jim Banner with 257 and the women's high handicapped game was won by Christine Rogers with 260.

Big day for Town gets backing from Gatting

Club to host ECB open day as part of recruiting drive

HARLOW Town Cricket Club's Paul Morrell is hopeful numbers will be boosted by welcoming members of the public through their doors as part of this year's ECB Club Open Day.

The ECB Club Open Days initiative, supported by Waitrose, is a nationwide programme that aims to help boost grassroots cricket participation by encouraging cricket clubs to open their pavilion doors and welcome guests from their local community for a day of cricket taster sessions and activities.

More than 1000 clubs up and down the country are set to take part in the initiative and Harlow plan to host a six-a-side tournament on July 26 in a bid to get more people into the sport.

And club secretary Morrell says Town will also be raising money for the British Heart Foundation on the day as they continue their annual charitable endeavours.

Fun

"We always do a charity day every year so we thought that this time we would combine it with the ECB Open Day," he said.

"There is going to be a six-a-side tournament, a barbecue and lots of other entertainment that will hopefully be a lot of fun for the community."

"We are always looking to get new players into the sport and I think this season we have seen numbers drop off slightly."

"On our charity days we always try to raise money for a good cause so hopefully this year we can raise a lot for the BHF."

"I'm really excited for the day because there will be a lot of local

"So with a bit of luck the weather holds out and the day is a huge success and we will see some new faces down at the club."

Former England captain turned ECB cricket partnership ambassador Mike Gatting believes as many people as possible should head down to Harlow Town's Elizabeth Way ground.

"Club Open Days have proven to be a fantastic way for cricket clubs to capitalise on the nation's fervour for cricket during the summer," said Gatting.

"By opening their pavilion doors and showcasing what they have to offer to their local community, clubs will hopefully be able to inspire newcomers to come and join them."

"We want to inspire more players, volunteers and social members to come together and get into cricket."

Sammut special leaves Town in a relegation dogfight

WICKFORD open Jonathon Sammut blew Harlow Town away in a whirlwind of batting brilliance.

After Neil Gladwin's side scored a reasonable 241-8 in their 50 overs, overseas star Sammut fired his side to victory as they finished on 242-3 in just 30 overs.

The result left Town third from bottom in the ten-team Shepherd Neame Essex League Division Two table.

Gladwin felt his side just had to acknowledge an incredible individual display.

"It was disappointing to lose so comprehensively, but sometimes you just need to accept that one person has had a wonderful day," he said.

"The way he tore into our new-ball attack completely took the wind out of our sails. However, we fought hard."

After winning the toss, Gladwin had no hesitation in batting first.

A 50-run opening partnership between Shiraz Ali and Ashley Alderson got the innings off to a good start, with Alderson scoring the bulk of the runs.

For the second week running Alderson (pictured above) fell just short of a 50 when he gloved a short delivery from Jamie Went for 49.

Gladwin said: "Ashley is really growing into his role at the top of the order and seeing him so disappointed each time he has made a start and then getting out actually makes me happy, as this is proof that he is desperately trying."

Alderson's replacement, Ramya Upadhyay, fell next ball and Ali went two balls later, leaving Town on 65-3.

A rebuilding job was required and Joe Holland and Pat Yates set about that task.

Holland plundered nine fours in his impressive run-a-ball innings of 43.

Gladwin came in and accelerated the innings.

He hooked, drove, pulled, swept and ramped with authority, giving the visitors a fighting chance as he finished on 76 not out from 68 deliveries.

In reply, Sammut (136no) took the game away from Town in the first five overs.

His brutal striking of the ball left Owais Qasim scratching his head as the first over went for 23. Sammut's 50 came up in the fourth over and it wasn't until the 12th over that the run rate fell below ten.

The game was quickly wrapped up in the 30th over. Gladwin added: "Jack Elston was the pick of our attack."

Town host second-bottom Ardleigh Green in a must-win match this weekend.

Town's seconds (193-8) lost by eight wickets against Wickford (197-2).

Town openers Jason Gladwin and 19-year-old Aaron Simpson (46) dug in against some very good bowling.

Gladwin continued his fine run of form with his fourth consecutive score of 50+ before he was lbw for 56.

But wickets tumbled after their departure and their opponents reached this total, some 70 runs short of a decent score, in double quick time.

Town need to start picking up some wins to ease some pressure at the bottom of the table.

The Town third team suffered a heavy 188-run loss against Harold Wood thirds.

Wood opener Simon Rowe (51) was his side's top scorer as they amassed 250-5 batting first.

Nick Teale claimed two wickets, finishing with figures of 2-80.

In response, Town were wiped out for 62 in 20.2 overs, with Andrew Baars the only player to make double figures.

There was more positive news for Town's fourth team (247-8) who drew their match against Stanford-le-Hope (208-6).

Put in to bat, Town batted well with Tom Wilcox (50) and Mark Griffiths (31) setting the tone.

Skipper Lee Richardson (54) chipped in with some quick runs.

The highlight of the innings was number nine batsman Tony Curtis hitting a brilliant maiden 50 not out as the visitors declared after 52 overs.

Town bowled well taking six wickets with Dylan Andrews (2-28) the pick of the bowlers.

Females flourishing a sign of club progress

Harlow in pole position as season heads to climax

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Athletic Club's women's team have enjoyed one of their most successful seasons for many a year, a sign of the growing strength of the female section.

This culminated in victory in the third round of the Southern Women's League at Erith in Kent.

Harlow AC, based at Mark Hall Sportscentre, won the match by ten points to overhaul South London and snatch top spot in the Division One standings.

The final match now becomes a winner-takes-all decider between the two clubs with promotion to the Premier Division the prize.

The women's team certainly have an ace up their sleeve in the form and progress of Polly Woods.

She competed in seven events and enjoyed five first-place finishes, recording a massive 32 metres in the hammer, which was close to her best.

Thrilling spectacle

Her tussle with Swale's Katie Masters in the 200m made for a thrilling spectacle.

The team had missed the contribution of the Owen family at the last match but they were all back for this fixture.

Mum Bridget ran the 3000m and took fourth in the A race in the veteran 45 age group.

She also took part in the shot and picked up third in the B event.

Twins, Hannah and Annabel (U17), took part in the sprints; Hannah was slightly quicker than her sister as she picked up second in the B 100m, while Annabel was fourth in the A 100m and then went on to win the B 200m.

Their younger sister, Louise (U15), enjoyed a good day as she picked up second places in the A 100m and discus, and won the A 1500m.

Another important family to the team are the Malcolms.

Eilidh (U15), Grace and Mairi

JUMPING JONES: Harlow Athletic Club stalwart Dawn Jones in action

(U13s) all took part in endurance events with Mairi picking up first in the B 1500m.

Grace and Eilidh both claimed second places in the A and B 800m races respectively.

There were welcome returns for Steph Fuller and Katie Champion.

Following a stint working abroad, Fuller picked up good points in the senior women's B hammer (1st), A discus (2nd) and A shot (4th).

She then made up a full complement of athletes in the 400m relay and entered herself to score points.

With the team coming third, and the narrow margin of victory overall, this was a good decision.

U17 athlete Champion has been unable to compete due to Saturday school commitments but returned with two second places (A 800m and long jump) and a third place (A 400m) in events the club had lacked athletes for earlier in the season.

Eleanor Moss posted a personal best (PB) of 18.74m in the discus to win the B event and threw the javelin over 30m in a consistent set of throws to win the A competition.

Beth Harryman (U15) picked up a hat-trick of wins in her three chosen events, hurdles, shot put and high jump and the club is sure to make use of her growing multi-event prowess going forward.

She was agonisingly short by just two centimetres of a 9m throw in the shot.

In the U15s, Ami Ashby (B 200m, 75m hurdles and high jump) and Claudia Andrews (200m and long jump) took second places in their events.

Martyna Jakstaite (U13), making her return following injury, picked up two B wins (long jump and discus).

Katie Brennan (U13) also performed well throwing a PB in the discus (9.68m).

In the 4x100m relays, the U15 girls and senior women picked up first and second respectively; the girls baton changing was particularly impressive.

HAC coach Steve Lott said: "I'm very proud of what the women have achieved. Five years ago I wondered if we could even persevere with a women's team as we were attending matches with as few as three athletes.

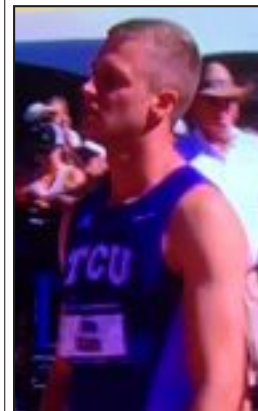

"Here we are today pushing for promotion to mix it with the likes of Windsor, Slough and Eton and Victoria Park – the home clubs of Morgan Lake and Perry Shakes-Drayton amongst other internationals.

"We have a huge opportunity to put Harlow back on the athletic map."

Track & Field

GREAT YEAR: Sam Watts

Watts reflects on special year in USA

HARLOW'S Sam Watts can look back on a fantastic year in which he has made a name for himself in the USA.

The 23-year-old, who has represented Great Britain, failed to make the World Championships in Beijing when injury forced him to pull out of the British Championships, the world trials.

The former Leventhorpe School student qualified from his heat for the 200m final at Birmingham's Alexander Stadium with a super-fast time of 21.06sec.

But a hamstring injury stopped the sprinter taking part in the main event the next day.

Watts said: "I took a slight hamstring injury in the heats and was unable to run in the final.

"It's nothing serious but after testing it out I realised I would not be able to perform at 100 per cent in the final and made a decision to pull out and not risk a serious injury.

"So this marks the end of what was undoubtedly the most successful season of my entire career."

Scholarship

Watts is in the second year of a degree at the Texas Christian University in Austin.

He won a scholarship to study at the Texas university and also collected a silver medal in the main university championships in America, the National Collegiate Athletic Association Championships.

This was in the 4x100m relay, as he helped his side romp to second place in a superb time.

His ultimate goal is representing Great Britain in the 2016 Olympic Games in Brazil.

This could be in either the 200m, 400m or relay.

His 200m time at the start of the year was the fastest in the world, giving Watts huge pride in an event dominated by Jamaica's Usain Bolt.

He said: "From the 200m world lead to making both indoors and outdoor NCAA championships and then to making the final of the British Championships.

"Thank you everyone for the support and love you've shown over the whole season, I can't tell you all how much I've appreciated it.

"But now it's time to take a much needed break and begin preparation for the Olympic year next year, where the goal is of course to make the Olympic Games."

Promotion play-off looms for men after brilliant win

HARLOW Athletic Club secured the Southern Men's League Division One East title after a series of fantastic performances in the final meeting at Erith.

The team's victory in Kent meant they progress to the Divisional Championships at Eton in August.

The Paxman brothers were again at the heart of the team's success as they utilised their multi-event talents to the full.

Glen Paxman took part in a mammoth 12 events, nine of which were as the A string competitor.

He picked up wins in seven A events (400m hurdles, 100m, 110m hurdles, 400m, high jump, pole vault and triple jump).

Perhaps the highlight was the very competitive 400m as he and Luton's Dan Bottesch battled hard from the final bend to the finish line; they were separated by less than half a second.

His brother, Carl, completed seven events.

He collected five B first places in the process, including a new PB (8.68 metres) in the shot.

He sealed first place in the A long jump. His leap of 6.18m was his longest of the season to date and only 15 centimetres short of his personal best (PB).

There were good performances on the track by Shemar Boldizar (U17 A 100m 1st) and Will Snook (U20 A 200m 1st).

Snook, recovering from a hamstring injury, recorded 23.3, a nationally recognised target time and for this he was awarded the meeting's man of the match watch from sponsors Soleus.

He is the fourth Harlow athlete to do so following Marcus Hunt, Dave Bauer and Boldizar this season.

Donald Campbell and Liam Mistry both had successful afternoons in the middle distance events.

In the 800m, Mistry was first in the A race and Campbell claimed victory in the B race.

Both men won their respective 1500m races.

By the time the 5000m was to be run it was clear that Harlow would win the match and so neither athlete risked their health in the sweltering conditions by competing.

On the field, Chris Clark (V50) chipped in with valuable points in the hammer as he threw just over 20m to pick up fourth place and Craig Snook also had a good day with two first places and a third.

He was first in the B pole vault with a height of 2.40m and first in the B javelin, narrowly short of 40m with a best attempt of 39.25m.

His third place was in the B discus with a throw of just over 22m.

Following the match injured men's captain, Dave Bauer said: "It's a great achievement in my view that such a little club as Harlow has once again put its men's team in the league final play-offs which will be against some British League teams."

Youngster Jacob Juniper made his club debut in the 4x100m relay. He ran an excellent first bend as the team were ahead from start to finish; winning in under 47 seconds for the third time this season.

Harlow also won the 4x400m relay.

HAC coach Steve Lott said: "This was a fantastic occasion as it's not often both senior teams are at the same venue. With both teams doing so well it was even better.

"Many congratulations to the men's team for reaching the Divisional Play-off for the second straight year.

"Looking at the list of eligible athletes the team could potentially better last year's fourth place finish in this year's finals."

ENGLISH JOY FOR TOWN ATHLETES

School Championships success seals national call-up

By Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FIVE Harlow athletes returned with pride after scintillating performances at the English Schools' Championships in Gateshead.

Multi-eventer Naomi Harryman and middle-distance runner Canaan Solomon came home with medals and have subsequently been selected to represent England U20s.

Multi-eventer Will Marklew, sprinter Shemar Boldizar and runner Zoe Benton also enjoyed their experience and returned with enhanced reputations.

For Mark Hall student Canaan, who turns 17 in September, it was the last chance for him to compete at the Championships, and so his first medal (intermediate boys) was all the more precious.

It also earned him his first England call-up as he takes on Scotland, Ireland, Wales and Northern Ireland in an U20 meeting at Glasgow next weekend.

The youngster, of Chamberlain Close in Harlow, was delighted with his silver medal when representing Essex, after a tactical race which saw him record a time of 1min 56sec in the 800m.

Last chance

He said: "It was my last chance to win a medal at these championships, so I was a bit nervous. In the past I have crumbled under pressure at the English Schools."

Canaan trains at Mark Hall Sportscentre four times a week, and at his athletic club, Woodford Green & Essex Ladies, twice a week.

He said: "It was a tactical race, so it was slower than my PB [personal best of 1:54]."

Canaan is excited about representing England for the first time. "I have always been there or thereabouts, but never got it. I'm not sure who will be there, but whoever's there I will take them on," he said.

Canaan is targeting the European U23 Championships next year and hopes to earn his first Great Britain vest at a meeting next spring at Loughborough.

Meanwhile, Harlow Athletic Club member Naomi was outstanding as she became national champion.

Representing Herts as she now attends school in Bishop's Stortford, she won the long jump on Sunday in a personal best (PB) of 5.92m, which now ranks her fifth in the UK in the U20 age group.

She still has two more years in this age group.

Naomi's mum Michelle said: "We are all thrilled and so proud. The excitement started at the beginning of last week when Naomi received a call-up from the England team selectors."

She had been selected to represent England in the heptathlon, but cannot compete due to other commitments.

Harlow Athletic Club member Will just missed out on a medal as he claimed fourth in the U20 javelin (58.30m). He has been chosen to represent England South at an international competition later this month.

His club-mate Shemar Boldizsar (St Mark's) was third in the intermediate boys' 200m heat clocking 22.66sec.

In the semi-final he was sixth in 22.68, just missing out on a place in the final.

Herts Phoenix AC member Zoe (St Nicholas) was second in her intermediate girls' 300m hurdles heat in 44.52.

This qualified her for Saturday's final where she sealed a creditable fifth place in 44.79.

NEW SIGNING: Ryan Melaugh

Top scorer and skipper refused to quit

DANNY CHAPMAN revealed skipper Dave Cowley and striker Alex Read had serious offers to quit Harlow Town.

Cowley, 27, has decided to stay at his hometown club, while Read also rejected offers from bigger clubs.

Midfielder Cowley, who came through the Glenn Hoddle Sports Academy in Spain in his early career before a spell at Recreativo de Huelva, scored 12 goals and had 17 assists last season, helping Harlow to a record 102 points tally and second place in the Ryman North table.

"He was our main creator. He is massively important in our team. I am really, really pleased he has stayed on. He has had other options, but he chose to stay with us," beamed Hawks boss Chapman.

"Dave can play anywhere in midfield. Wherever he plays he will create problems for teams."

On Read - who scored 52 goals in the 2013-14 campaign and 42 despite being injured for six weeks last season - Chapman said: "He can change a game just like that. On his day he is unplayable. Read has had offers but Alex loves scoring goals and the way we play suits Alex."

Loved

"Alex knows he is going to get opportunities. We are going to create for him. He is loved by the supporters. There is no reason he needs to go anywhere else. He has got everything a footballer needs right here."

Chapman has signed Ryan Melaugh to cover for the loss of Shane Stamp, who has switched to Billericay, ironically the club that Melaugh left to come to The Harlow Arena.

He is excited by the capture of Melaugh. "He's a wide left player. He has great technical ability and has a great delivery. The other thing I like is his work rate, he works hard," he said.

The Hawks boss still needs a centre-half to cover for the loss of Josh Urquhart to Conference South club Wealdstone, while he would also like to bring in a defensive midfielder and a second keeper to provide competition for Ed Thompson after Andy Walker's exit.

"I need to strengthen in a couple of areas, just freshen it up as it can go a bit stale," he said.

Second straight loss puts Harlow in relegation scrap

A SECOND successive defeat to fellow strugglers has left Rehman Ahmed's Harlow side facing up to a relegation scrap.

The Marigolds men remain in mid-table but are now just 12 points off bottom club Orsett following the 76-run reverse to Hainault & Clayhall in Shepherd Neame Essex League Division One on Saturday.

A poor day in the field gave Harlow a mountain to climb as they dropped seven catches.

Hainault opted to bat first and their opening partnership took them to 41 before Ahmed Khawaja caught Etinder Bopara - brother of Essex star Ravi Bopara - at gully for 13, off the bowling of Nicky Baxter.

Fellow opener Yasin Patel was bowled by Luke Monger for 34.

Irfan Shah scored 79 off 74 balls in a partnership of 108 with Hassan Shafiq to boost the Hainault tally.

Hafiz Yawar started to make inroads into Hainault's batting line-up when he came into the attack. Yawar picked up the wicket of Shafiq for 44, but Monger impressed the most, with 5-40 off his ten overs.

Hainault posted 273-8 in their 50 overs.

In reply, Harlow lost Yawar (18) to a bizarre run out with the score on 36.

Wickets continued to fall as Adeel Malik removed skipper Ahmed and Khawaja cheaply.

Harlow's other opener, Alan Jones, was then out lbw for 11.

Vice-captain Jon Perry and Conor Ramsey gave Harlow some stability. But Perry was caught out by the spin bowling of Ravi Ravel for 24.

Ramsey continued to bat through and was the last man out for 61, only receiving support from Monger (12) and an injured Luke Heskett (26) as the innings ended on 197 after 43 overs.
